

<h2>Description</h2>	If your ice cream sits out in the hot sun, the result will be that you will have “ice cream soup”.	A story about panthers is organized into four sections, each section describing a different characteristic of a panther.
In 500 BC people of the Persian Empire were the first to make ice cream. Then, in 1851, commercial ice cream production began in North America. Eventually, in 1904, The World's Fair caused local ice cream sellers to make the world's first ice cream cones.	An author explains how to distinguish a panther from a bobcat by providing characteristics shared by each, and emphasizing their distinctive features.	An instructional guide provides a detailed explanation of how to assemble a model Florida panther, step-by-step.
<h2>Sequence</h2>	<h2>Cause and Effect</h2>	Ice cream is a frozen, sugary sweet delicacy. It comes in a variety of flavors, for example, chocolate, strawberry, and vanilla.
If you have a problem with your ice cream melting before you eat it, the solution is to put it in the freezer.	An author writes an article about the evolutionary history of the Florida panther and organizes significant historical events based on the corresponding year each occurred.	Although both ice cream and broccoli share the similarity of both being food, they are part of two different food groups. Ice cream belongs in the dairy group and broccoli belongs in the fruits and vegetables group.
<h2>Compare and Contrast</h2>	To make a delicious ice cream sundae, first, scoop ice cream into a bowl. Next, add your favorite toppings. Finally, grab a spoon and enjoy!	<h2>Problem and Solution</h2>

An article explains the effects of increasing construction on the habitats of endangered species.	<h1>Chronological</h1>	An author addresses the diminishing panther population by explaining the reasons for the decline, and offering suggestions for improving the species' survival rate.
--	------------------------	---